You think of me

Mom?

and I'll think of you

Ben?

*We'll have a conversation,
just me and you*

No matter where you are

No matter where you go

Send me a bubble

Hi Mom

and I Hi Ben
will know

Send me a bubble

it will float
high above the clouds

I hit a home run
today!

WOW!
I wish you
could have seen it!

I'm kinda afraid of the dark

I promise I'll catch it,
it doesn't have to be loud

Send me a bubble, you don't have to speak

Shhh...
don't say a word

A child is lying on their stomach in a bed, looking towards a window. Outside the window, a large, bright full moon is visible against a dark blue night sky. The room is dimly lit, with the moonlight providing the primary light source. The child's expression is thoughtful or perhaps a bit worried.

Just think whatever thoughts you want

I'm scared

What if they don't like me...

A child is sitting on the edge of a bed, looking out a window. The window shows a bright, sunny day with a clear sky and a landscape. The child's expression is one of hope or anticipation. The room is brightly lit by the sunlight coming through the window.

Mom,
can we go to the ballpark
today?

Any time,
any day
of the week

Gosh,
Mom...

Send me a bubble when you're happy

Thanks,
Mom

I feel terrible...

Send me a bubble when you're blue

Let me tell you my love

It will be okay

I'm
here.

I'll know just what to do

Send me a bubble
Ask a question, sing a song

Tell me
about God,
Mom...

Did you hear
about the chicken
that crossed the road?

Hmmm,
You are my sunshine....

Ask a riddle
if you dare

If you ever need me
Let me assure you
I will always be there

You can do it!

Bubble Talk Bubble Talk
Think it, believe it, it's true

Dream...

Hope...

Believe...

I'll know your bubbles
I'll know that it's you

Send me a bubble
from your heart,
From your mind

Send me your love
And I'll
send you mine

I love
you,
Mom

I love
you,
Ben
